Ground Forces Move in

SAIGON (AP) — About 8,000 U.S. combat troops swept into Cambodia today and began setting up bases for assaults on the headquarters zone of the supreme Communist command for South Vietnam operations.

It marked the first time in the nine-year-old Vietnam war that an American ground force has extended its operations into Cambodia, at least in force.

About 55 miles to the southwest one of four South Vietnamese task forces that invaded the Parrot's Beak area of Cambodia Wednesday linked up with Cambodian troops defending the provincial capital of Svay Rieng. This force had thrust 50 miles into Cambodia along Highway 1.

Scores of U.S. B52 bombers and nearly 100 artillery pieces blasted the way for the American assault force accompanied by some 2,000 South Vietnamese troops and hundreds of tanks and armored personnel carriers.

Enemy resistance was light and scattered in the area known to the military as the Fishhook, and advance units stabbed 20 miles into Cambodia.

One U.S. C130 cargo plane dropped a 15,000-pound four miles inside Cambodia to blast away jungle land for the building of a base called Fire Support Base Center.

The mission to set up bases indicated that the Americans plan to stay a while in Cambodia. While initial U.S. Command reports indicated only light ground action, Associated Press photographer Charles Ryan reported from four miles inside Cambodia that American transport helicopters lifting in troops ran into heavy enemy groundfire.

Ryan said a score of helicopters were hit. Pilots told Ryan that five of the helicopters were shot down and crashed.

A crewman told Ryan that one pilot was shot in the head while flying his helicopter at tree-top level, and the aircraft immediately crashed. A radio transmission said the pilot was killed, but the U.S. Command in Saigon said it could not confirm this.

If confirmed, it would mark the first American serviceman killed in an offensive operation on Cambodian soil.

The U.S. Command said that by dusk Friday, 99 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops had been killed, most of them by helicopter gunships, and one supply truck destroyed.

Initial reports from the U.S. Command said six Americans were wounded.

Sources said the operation, the biggest in nearly three years, is aimed at smashing North Vietnamese and Viet Cong supply lines, communications networks and storage and staging areas used for attacks into South Vietnam.

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada and the United States share the world's longest unarmored border, and the friendship between the two North American giants is widely noted.

But the increasingly apparent onslaught against the world's environment by modern industry may be setting the stage for a quiet showdown between the friendly neighbors.

Canada, with a wary eye toward American oil prospecting in Alaska and proposed oil shipping routes past thousands of miles of Canadian shoreline, has mapped out plans to put into effect a 100-mile offshore pollution protection zone.

A note from Canada to the U.S. government defended the proposed 100-mile limit, taking the view that a danger to a nation's environment constitutes a threat to its security.

The proposed legislation "is of a different order from unilateral interference with freedom of the high seas," Canadian Foreign Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Canadian House of Commons in a discussion of the note to Washington.

Mitchell added that the United States had repeatedly interfered with free use of the high seas. "The atomic tests carried out by the U.S.A. and were wounded."

If the legislation is put into effect in Canada, American oil companies would be put on notice that their plans to use supertankers to carry oil through the Northwest Passage will be subject to keen scrutiny.

Recent events in Washington may have the effect of making oil companies take another look at Canada for shipping their black gold to the United States.

Much of the oil from the vast resources of the Prudhoe Bay area in northern Alaska was to have been carried by an 800-mile pipeline to the sleepy southern Alaska port of Valdez, a town of 1,200 on the shore of the Gulf of Alaska.

But ecologists have been concerned that the pipeline would cause grave damage to the delicate balance of the Alaskan environment. WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously today to request a meeting with President Nixon to discuss the implications of his decision to order American combat troops into Cambodia.

"We think it is our constitutional responsibility to do so," said Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., calling the President's action "a substantial expansion of the war in Indochina."

The President's action, which he called necessary to protect U.S. fighting men already in Vietnam, drew both support and criticism in Congress and throughout the nation.

Politically, some longtime Republican supporters of the Vietnam effort, fearing political disaster for the GOP, have joined Democratic critics of the war in opposing the new move.

Fulbright's committee made its request in a letter which asked for a conference with the President "at his earliest convenience."

Members said it was the first time the committee had made such a request to a president since 1919 when it met with President Woodrow Wilson during the controversy over the League of Nations.

"We felt that a meeting with the President every 50 years was not unreasonable," said Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont the senior committee Republican.

Asked if he hoped Nixon could be dissuaded from his course, Fulbright said the committee hoped to convey to the President its view of what he called "these very grave situations."

"We would like to discuss the implications of the action," Fulbright said.

Naylor Man Hurt by Tornado, Sheds Destroyed

NAYLOR - Four southeast Missouri counties were placed under a tornado warning last night after a small tornado dipped down at 10 p.m. between Naylor and Poplar Bluff, injuring one and destroying farm barns and sheds.

The trailer home of James French, 48, was destroyed. French was knocked unconscious and regained consciousness under a butane tank. He was scratched and bruised.

A home he was building next to the trailer was destroyed.

The warning covered a two-hour period. A wider area of Southeast Missouri, Northeast Arkansas, Western Tennessee and Southern Illinois were under a tornado watch until 7 a.m. today.

The four counties covered by the warning were Scott, Stoddard, Cape Girardeau and Butler.

Thunderstorms, hail and wind storms were included in the watch in which communications set up between radio stations relayed storm warnings from Poplar Bluff, Malden, Dexter, Holcomb and Sikeston. Six members of the Citizens Band radio club maintained a watch in Sikeston for funnel clouds.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Life was simple in the old days. The Government didn't have experts and consultants.

HAIL THE MILITARY-INDUSTRIAL COMPLEX!

There are at least three fellows in our country today who aren't about to join the popular indoor sport of attacking the so-called "military-industrial complex." Indeed, NASA is a prime example of the achievements possible through the combined and integrated efforts of government, civilian, military and industrial forces working as a cooperative team.

In the government scheme of things, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is listed as an "independent agency," along with such other bodies as the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Civil Aeronautics Board, the Federal Maritime Commission, the General Services Administration, the National Labor Relations Board, etc.

Although it is stipulated that NASA must be under civilian control, with a civilian administrator appointed by the President, the agency has broad powers to enlist the cooperative support of our national resources, whether in the field of science, research, electronics, communications, or non-military assistance from the Department of Defense. The result of it all has been a fantastic, massive break-through in myriad fields of advanced technology, far beyond the exploration of space itself. In the field of communications alone, new discoveries to match the space challenge have made obsolete virtually every textbook in the field over five years old.

But NASA exists only through funds appropriated by the United States Congress - and members of Congress remain in office only so long as the voters keep them there. There are indeed dangers posed by "big government," but NASA isn't one of them.

When the Apollo 13 crew found itself "lost in space" with a crippled space ship, they were mighty happy that the "military-industrial complex" on the ground had the technical knowledge and equipment required to bring them back - and so are we.

"In a bid for so-called postal 'reform' the President of the U.S. has urged Congress to legalize compulsory unionism for the nation's postal workers and thereby publicly repudiated his own personal pledges to the American people and his party's campaign platform," Reed Larson, Executive Vice President of the National Right to Work Committee said today.

"What he proposes would authorize the firing of loyal postal employees who refuse to pay dues to the union officials responsible for illegal strikes against the government."

Commenting on the President's message to Congress calling for postal reorganization on "an independent self-contained basis ... with collective bargaining in the new postal establishment resembling that of private industry," Larson said, "the proposal opens the door for the legalization of compulsory unionism for postal workers and would set a tragic precedent for 12,000,000 public employees in all branches of Federal, state and local governments. At a press conference he called to announce the package his Postmaster General admitted that the compulsory union shop would be allowed if the proposal is passed by Congress.

"The President said that 'The people of this nation cannot and will not submit to the coercion of strikes by employees of the Federal Government.' I believe it is worth pointing out to the President that many people in this nation feel they cannot and will not submit to his opening the gates to the coerced unionization of millions of Americans and increasing the already excessive power of union officials.

"Many Congressmen are already on record opposed to any proposal to legalize compulsory unionism for postal workers. Mr. Nixon can expect a fight in Congress over his so-called reform package."

Have you ever heard of "impact attenuation"? It means lessening the force, or speed, of something as it approaches a danger point. The principle can be seen in action on an aircraft carrier in the form of the arresting gear that snags oncoming airplanes so they don't plunge over the side.

The principle may be applied to help save lives on our highways one of these days. Testing of techniques for stopping vehicles within a reasonable distance after they leave the highway-- with minimum damage and injury to the vehicle and its occupants-- has been going on at Texas A & M University, and elsewhere.

Several types of Impact Attenuation systems are being looked at. One system involves 55-gallon drums arranged in various numbers and configurations to provide relatively soft impact. The idea of water-filled plastic bags is being looked at, too, as are various types of guardrail designs incorporating shock absorbers.

Value of this research and development effort can be seen in the fact that about three-fourths of fatal accidents on our nation's freeway system involve single-car collisions with roadside obstacles.

Hitting a cement bridge abutment at 50 miles an hour can spoil your whole day. Obviously, any Impact Attenuation system that can bring rapid deceleration from 50 miles an hour to even 20 miles an hour increases chances for survival.

The Colonel said: "If no time has been set for the wedding, there is still a chance for the man to get away."

We have withheld any comment on the post office workers demanding higher pay, with some of the major cities affected by strikes, but we believe this first postal strike in U.S. history will speed a shake-up in the whole U.S. postal system.

Congress has been dragging its feet on Nixon's request for reforms which will give the Postmaster General power to set postage rates, negotiate wages, hire and fire, and improve efficiency.

There is no doubt that wages of postal employees will be raised, especially in the higher-cost of living areas like New York, and the public can expect to pay more to mail letters, etc. In return, voters will demand that the mails operate. Also, people are fed up with continuing poor service despite rising rates.

The image of postmen as dedicated, dependable couriers is fairly well shattered. Thefts and lack of discipline in recent years have lowered the standards in many of our large post office centers.

Reasons behind theft of a vial of moon gravel stolen at a Los Angeles fund-raising dinner remain obscure. Few black markets would buy it; and the thief couldn't use the deed as a status symbol. Small wonder the thieves left a note telling where the gravel could be recovered.

The full value of advertising cannot be assessed unless it is regarded as an investment in the future.

No retailer who wishes to retain his position in the local market place can judge the value of advertising on the basis of returns from day to day or week to week.

Even when straight item advertising is done-- as is true with most grocery and department store advertising -- a merchant has to consider long range effects.

Some years ago, a leading chain grocery store established its primacy by emphasizing low cost alone in advertising. However, when the American consumer became more prosperous, the store began to experience a loss of anticipated business.

Unwittingly, the strictly low price advertising had given the store a reputation of handling low quality goods. The reputation was not deserved; however, it took a decade of counter-advertising to eliminate the adverse image.

Every retailer has a similar problem of anticipating the long range effects of advertising. Advertising in the hometown paper is affecting the consumer who may not enter the buying market until another five or ten years.

The future consumer begins reading the local newspaper while still in grade school.

NEW YORK (AP) — If I had my way—

Any American over 50 years of age who had never been on a public welfare roll would be given a gold medal.

Pigeons would wear diapers. Congressmen would have to hitchhike around their home districts at least once a year so they'd really get to meet the people.

It would be against the law to have knives and forks on the table at a chicken dinner.

Anybody who ever asked another person during a cold spell how he was standing the heat wave would be compelled to jog a mile through the snow clad only in his underwear.

The name of pop art would be changed to unpop art.

Any advertising writer who wrote that something was as American as blueberry pie would get a free blueberry pie—right in his face.

All television comedians who joke about their wives and mothers-in-law would have to buy them equal time on a national network so they could tell what a crumb he is.

Supermarket shopping carts would be equipped with rubber

Every bottle at a cocktail party would self-destruct five minutes after the party was supposed to be over.

Every person convicted of drunken driving would receive an automatic one-year jail sentence.

No man would be permitted to wear shoulder-length hair in public unless he concealed it under a crew-cut wig.

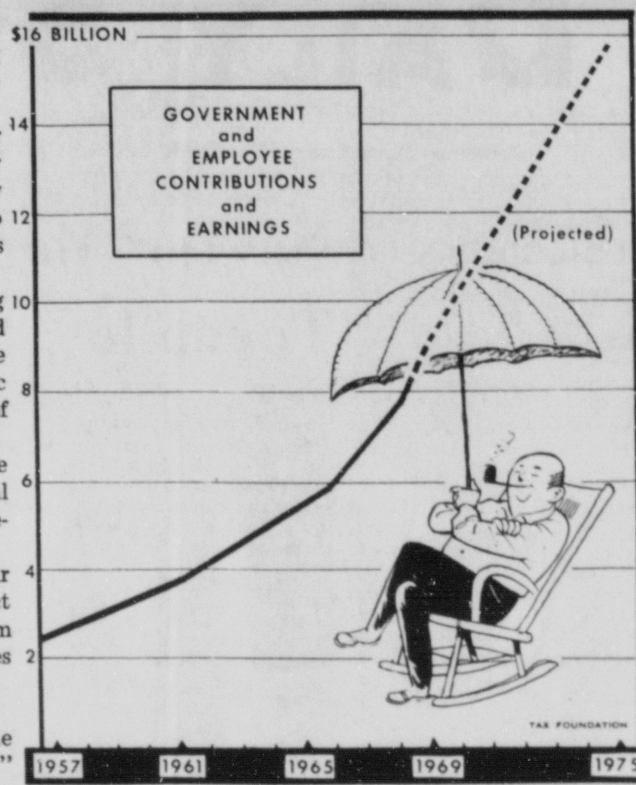

Anyone convicted of peddling narcotics would immediately have injected into his own person whatever drugs were found on him at the time of his arrest.

For sports fans who weary of the long baseball season, pro football teams would play two schedules—one in the spring and another in the fall.

All college faculty members would be free to join in a student picket line—but they'd lose their pay any day they did so.

Corporations which issue credit cards would have to print on the back of them this warning: "These cards are addictive and can lead to quick insolvency."

State-Local Pension Costs Climb

By 1975 state and local pension systems will need $16 billion a year to cover an estimated 11 million members. About half the annual tab comes from public funds and the rest from employee contributions and income from investments, according to new Tax Foundation study.

CLEAN AIR IS POSSIBLE
Progress is being made in the antipollution battle—at least in the area of air quality. "Oil Facts" reports, "Air quality in the nation's urban centers is improving." It cites figures from The Air Pollution Control Association that show an average 28 per cent decline in the sulfur dioxide content of air in and around 20 metropolitan centers. New York authorities say the amount of sulfur dioxide entering the atmosphere over the city was reduced 28 per cent below the 1966 level. Columbus, Ohio, reports that sootfall has been reduced 50 per cent since 1952. Denver's visible air pollutants have diminished 60 per cent since 1962.

A spokesman for The Air Pollution Control Association comments, "The pattern of progress established by these reports shows that urban

Trading Stamp Boom
Even inflation has its bright side: Higher prices mean more trading stamps on purchases and, for those who save them, faster accumulation of stamps means quicker redemption for various premiums.

This is only one reason why trading stamps are here to stay, says Dr. Harold Fox, a Northern Illinois University marketing professor who has made an extensive study of the stamp system.

Trading stamp sales were about $800 million in 1969, he reports. This was less than one-tenth of one per cent of the nation's gross national product and a minor element in the total U.S. economy.

Yet for millions of housewives, stamps are like egg money, a way for them to acquire goods for the family that may not have been provided for in the household budget. And

Washington Merry - Go - Round
By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — While President Nixon has boasted of his efforts to clean up the air, his aides have sabotaged plans by the National Air Pollution Control Administration to make the air more breathable.

This hypocrisy is revealed in a confidential "Report to the President and the Congress," which has been carefully suppressed. A copy was smuggled to this column by a government employee willing to risk his job to prevent the weakening of the air pollution fight.

The document, submitted to the Health, Education, and Welfare Department in mid-July for approval, calls for a minimum of 2,900 more federal air pollution fighters by 1974. This would take more money, however, than the Nixon administration is willing to spend.

The document also cites the great gaps in state and local air pollution programs.

"State and local air pollution control agencies currently have a total of 2,840 full-time budgeted positions. . . . An additional 5,160 positions are needed, the report declares. But low pay has put the states 20 per cent behind in filling the openings already available.

Pollution Fighters Needed
The federal anti-pollution unit, whose growth rate would be roughly the same as that of the states, has only 1,065 available openings. Insiders say a minimum of 1,700 are needed now, and the report asserts "establishment" through Head Start's parent auxiliaries.

Revolutionaries have infiltrated the Head Start program at points as far apart as California, Utah, Idaho and New England. They have happily preached the overthrow of the government, which pays their salaries.

But in most areas, the program is functioning as it was intended. The picture is one of the loving but bureaucracy-bound teachers and aides giving confidence to youngsters who never knew it existed. From Mississippi, for instance, has come Negro leaders: please keep Head Start going as the greatest program since Emancipation.

The challenging but controversial Head Start concept was introduced under President Johnson. Its purpose was to give poor pre-school tots some momentum as they entered grammar school, so they wouldn't begin behind and never catch up.

A recent Westinghouse study showed that Head Start youngsters did little better than non-Head Starters. But other studies have shown the program to be invaluable.

It has been treated with some skepticism by the Nixon administration, thanks largely to the opposition of President Nixon's social adviser, Pat Moynihan. The program's founding father, Jule Sugarman, quietly resigned after being told he would have to step down and take the No. 2 post.

He had been running Head Start since 1965 without partisan favor and had hoped President Nixon would appoint him permanent director. His departure is now being papered over as "routine," but the truth is that he refused to accept a demotion. He has now gone to work for Mayor John Lindsay in New York City.

Footnote: The infiltration of revolutionaries into a few Head Start classrooms wasn't the main reason for Sugarman's departure. The whole program is under attack both at the White House and on Capitol Hill.

Moon Missiles
Space officials have asked the White House for surplus military missiles to shoot at the moon. They are so intrigued with the strange moon quakes, which keep the lunar landscape vibrating for long periods after a crash, that they want to conduct further tests. They would like to crash the surplus missiles, carrying various weights, into the moon to study the effects.

because stamps are not "liquid" like money, they have to be saved before they can be used.

Stamps also appeal to people's desire to give and receive presents. More than 20 per cent of all redemptions are for gifts to people outside the family.

Another advantage is that redemption centers, by handling narrow assortments of a wide variety of goods, offer, says Fox, a merchandise value to the stamp saver 10 per cent greater than the cost of the stamps to the merchant issuing them.

Kinds of makes your tongue feel sticky, doesn't it?

A police car stopped a motorist on the highway and informed the driver that his wife fell out of the auto a mile back. "Thank God!" exclaimed the motorist. "I thought I'd gone deaf."

Thirty is a wonderful age - especially if you happen to be forty.

A soldier in a carrier pigeon was singing one day as he was cleaning out the cages. A passing officer commented, "Don't tell me you enjoy doing that?"

"Sir," replied the GI, "before I transferred here, I was in the cavalry."

DISPLAY OF TRANSPORT PROGRESS
Modern transportation, like everything else, has undergone revolutionary changes to keep up with rising costs, as well as the demands of the public. And the transport revolution involves more than altering the size and shape of the family auto.

Everyone at one time or another finds themselves driving parallel to a railroad where a speeding freight train is running alongside of them. Such a closeup view of the thundering iron monster of the rails and the long string of cars behind it moving hundreds of tons of goods at a mile-a-minute clip is thrilling and a bit awesome. It is also a spectacular display of modern transport. For example, here the motorist may see containerization at work, just as he will see piggybacking of truck trailers and rack cars of new autos. Most containers look like truck trailers without wheels, usually made of reinforced steel - 8 feet high, 8 feet wide and in lengths of up to 40 feet. Containerization is as much as 30 times faster than conventional handling. A rail industry release observes: "The containers are intermodal - that is, they can be quicker redemption for various modes of transportation. It's possible for a shipper to send out a container - or several of them - by truck for loading aboard a train; the train then can take them to a seaport, where the load may be transferred to a ship for delivery to a foreign buyer - all without opening any container." Containerization is the basis of the new "land bridge" concept under which international shipment of goods can be expedited by high-speed, transcontinental rail transport.

The next time you see a speeding freight train take a good look at it. It is an excellent illustration of our changing world.

H.L. Hunt Says
EXPERT ADVICE ON THE WAR IN VIETNAM
Recently the weekly periodical HUMAN EVENTS received over 7,000 replies to a questionnaire on the war in Vietnam sent to retired Army and Air Force generals. These responses indicate the policies that military experts believe should be followed to bring the Vietnamese war to a swift and honorable conclusion.

In response to the first question, "Do you believe that the loss of South Vietnam to the Communists would seriously affect the military security of the United States?", 500 generals replied that they thought it would. In response to the question, "Do you believe that the United States should unilaterally and immediately withdraw its troops from Vietnam?", 93% or 672 answered no.

The generals were asked to comment on specific suggestions for bringing the war to a successful conclusion. Four hundred eight generals believed that we should blockade or mine Haiphong Harbor. Major-General David Parker commented: "Blockading North Vietnam, even at this late date, would exert the requisite pressure on the enemy, at a relatively small cost in lives and money (probably less than that of the policy of attrition which we are now pursuing)."

Lieutenant-General Thomas Hickey pointed out in his reply to the questionnaire that the "restrictions placed by our political leadership on the conduct of military operations caused excessive losses in our nation's most priceless commodity: our youth."

These retired military men have experience and knowledge which qualifies them to comment on the conduct of the war in Vietnam. Their views should carry more weight than the views of so-called intellectuals who urge our immediate withdrawal from Vietnam. H.L.H.

Pro-Vietcong Strikes. SDS symbolic demonstrations that rehearses for slowdown of war can force the imperialists to halt their war of aggression against the Vietnamese.

New York - A commune once grew in Brooklyn - about recent directive. "Our approach 90 years ago. Young social revolutionaries, fugitives from the Russian police, lived in the 'apartment socialism' in a neighborhood called Greenpoint and over not tea had torrid discussions about the assassinations of Czar Alexander II and President James A. Garfield.

There were two sects of revolutionists. Those who abhorred bloodshed. And those who were gory intellectuals. The more things change, the more they are the same. Today there are - or were until recently - 3 communes (pads, they call them now) in Akron, "the rubber city," 40 or 50 in New York, and scores more in those industrial cities from Baltimore to California where the asphalt and campus jungles intertwined.

Today's apartment communists are yesterday's counterparts. The tea has yielded to pot. But the split is still there between the terrorists and those who mock them for rushing through parks waving the Vietcong and black flags. Today's terrorist is meaner than his ancient philosophical ancestor after whom the Weatherman faction models itself. It spurs broad-gauged violence whereas the 19th century terrorist picked his target.

So we find the Mark Rudd (leader of the Battle of Columbia University) faction distributing revolutionary tracts, as did the wild ones of the 1880s when they were urged to march up Fifth Ave. with their tools and seize "the system."

Today the Weatherman's leaflets sound like this recent one which concluded: "The best way to move on and the pigs, to free ourselves and live. We don't need to be technical wizards, we need to be sneaky. Arm yourself - sneak up behind the pig on your best with a baseball bat. . . . Get your best friends together - figure out what you need and get it. Figure out a 2-month plan of action, while scores of workers of all Love each other. Free yourself."

I have omitted some gory details which talk of arson. But all this is sneered at by another faction which talks of a Work-In-Leninist-workers - socialist coalition. This means this "gradualist" SDS faction dreams of getting its people into the unions, the factories, onto the picket lines and rehearsing them for year-round Work-In with the ultimate objective of replacing the rehearsal Work-In Action with material action to aid the Vietnamese Communists with work stoppages.

"Support for strikes like the one at Dow (last summer) presents the possibility of material action (as opposed to the less bloody romanticists, who have junked Herbert Marcuse for Pierre Proudhon and Prince Kropotkin, are heading for such industries as auto, steel, glass, rubber, clothing, telephones, magazines (for some peculiar reasons) and the service arenas of "working-class contact."

"Everyone in the project will be getting a full-time or part-time job," says another directive, "either for all or part of the summer. The purpose of taking jobs will be to expose us concretely to the realities of American working people, and to put us in touch with as many different segments of working class youth as possible."

"People will be encouraged to take jobs in factories and shops (particularly where strikes are anticipated) as cab drivers, parks, dog dog stands, as secretaries, waitresses or barmaids."

Don't scoff at the hot dog-stand tactic. Sounds silly. But don't believe it for one minute. Get up to some big park here. See the youth gather. Watch them pay 50 cents to "peace readers" to emote loudly out a 2-month plan of action, while scores of workers of all races and creeds listen and munch their holiday fare.

But propaganda is only part of the operation. Last summer a Work-In SDSers got into some Chrysler plants. This summer they're heading for all three car manufacturers.

They want to find the sore spots - and rub in their propaganda of disension, wildest and sabotage.

And while you cull all this just be aware that the New York City police intelligence bureau has hard evidence of Cuban, Maoist and St-viet spies pouring in on the thrills to a century-old cult. It's spring and the fancy of this exotic young band has turned to hate.

Ann Landers
Mother Drinks up Dad's Support
Check...Five Children Going Without

Dear Ann Landers: My mom and dad got a divorce last year and our family is falling apart. Mom is drunk most of the time and can't hold a job. I'm 15 and have two brothers and two sisters.

I've tried my best to make a home for the younger kids, but it's a losing battle. Dad sends the support checks every month but Mom drinks up most of it. (On top of her own drinking problem, she has some thirsty friends.)

I work after school washing dishes in a cafe. I don't mind not having any social life, or time to study as much as I should, but I don't think I ought to be away from the house so much. The little ones need me. Please tell me what to do. - Fargo, N. D.

Dear Fargo: I hope the teen-agers who gripe because they aren't getting a car for their 16th birthday will read your letter so they can see what a real problem looks like.

Does your Dad know what goes on? If he doesn't, he should. Have you a favorite aunt or uncle you can talk to? You need to confide in an adult. This problem is too big for a 15-year-old girl to handle alone. If your dad won't do anything and you have not relatives, I urge you to talk to your high school counselor. These counselors do a wonderful job of helping kids who have real trouble, - and you qualify. Honey, Good luck and please write again and let me know how you are getting along.

Dear Ann Landers: Help! Our adorable boss is vacationing in Europe. Word has reached us that he has bought himself a luxurious hair piece. This dear man does not have one hair on his head. "The new look" is going to be a tremendous shock when he comes home.

To remain silent would be unnatural and awkward. Yet what sort of remark would be appropriate? Please advise us. Our entire office is on - Tenterhooks.

Dear Hooks: Old Baldy will be disappointed if, after having gone to all this trouble and expense, nobody says a word. A guy who goes from total baldness to a full head of hair in one giant leap expects comments. (He should also expect some gentle needling.)

A simple remark such as, "It looks great," would be appreciated. And try not to stare, kids.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a pair of relatives who are making me sick. They both retired last year and have more money than everyone in the family put together. They sold their home for $45,000 and moved into an efficiency apartment which they have already subleased. This pair has not spent four weeks at home since they retired. Systematically they sponge off everyone they can think of. Their only expenses are gas and oil. They never bring a steak or a sack of fruit. They never take anyone to a restaurant. They don't even write a thank-you note.

We had them for three weeks in July, three weeks in November and yesterday we received a note saying they are coming again in June. What should we do? - R and S

Dear R and S: If you allow these parasites to do it to you a third time, you deserve it. The best approach is the direct approach. "Sorry, but we can't accommodate you. We are both tired. We'll let you know when the situation changes."

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by everyone they can think of. Read "Booze and You" - For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Designer of Fasteners Is Fashion Field VIP

OAKVILLE, Conn. (AP) — James Kruger can stand right up there with the Diors, Brooks, Gernreichs, Norells and Trigeres as a trend-setter in the glamorous world of female fashion.

Well, it's true he's nobody in haute couture. He's won no fashion awards; none of his creations are pictured in magazines, nor are his designs displayed in store windows.

As head of engineering for the Scovill company's Oakville division, a leading maker of findings for the garment industry, Kruger is a key person in the design and manufacture of special fasteners for lingerie. Without these special fasteners the style trend toward sleekness, comfort and freedom of movement would not be possible.

It is his job to study the needs of lingerie manufacturers and then help develop the brass, steel, aluminum and plastic buckles, slides, links and rings that simplify size adjustment, make putting on and taking off easier, hold firm, live through the washing machine, eliminate bumps and bulges under the material, come in hundreds of colors and reduce manufacturing costs.

After consulting with his marketing people on the fastener requirements of lingerie manufacturers, Kruger designs prototypes for thorough testing. Then he sets up the most economically possible manufacturing procedures for the perfected item.

The engineering accomplishments that Kruger has been instrumental in developing include flat two-piece closures for front-opening bras; detachable links for removal of shoulder straps in some brassiere styles; links for holding looped stockings to girdles, replacing bulky garters; "hardware" for combination lingerie; and flat plastic buckles for lingerie backs which are warmer on bare skin than metal and are more comfortable when the wearer sits on hard-backed chairs.

No, Kruger doesn't create fashion, but without him, and others in the fastening field, such words as "strapless," "plunging," "decollete" and "see-through" would represent frustration rather than creation for the fashion designers.

'Without Onions' To Show Tonight

The determination of a football player and his high school steady to rise above today's new morality trends highlights the film story for "Without Onions," feature length color motion picture to be shown tonight at 7:30 p.m. The film's appearance in this area is sponsored by the First Assembly of God Church, Sikeston.

Pete and Sonya, typical American high school students, had been following the crowd in their patterns of conduct until a businessman in their community showed them how relative Christian faith can be in the life of a modern teenager.

Intrigued by their new discovery, Pete and Sonya determined to relate their faith to others on campus. As a part of their effort, Pete turned in his best year in football and the two of them made significant contributions to the honor club seminar, their high school's top prestige group.

John Washbrook, known to millions as the child star of the "My Friend Flicka" television series, plays the lead in the film. The series, produced over ten years ago, still appears on many TV stations. Washbrook is supported by professional actors Beverly Washburn, Tony Mockus and David Mink.

in the middle school column

LET'S TALK ABOUT IT By Maureen B. Klein

Interest Activities are something new to Sikeston schools. This new approach to makeschool enjoyable is found at Middle School. First, I feel I should admit that last week I doubted the value of this program for I am a person who likes to see immediate results. It bothered me somewhat that a sixth grade boy after twelve weeks of bridge lessons was still wondering when we were going to quit playing around and build that bridge.

Today, I feel differently. I am convinced that any way to bridge the gap between lethargy and student participation in school sponsored activities will be a push in the right direction. Each student should feel he belongs, that he is important as an individual. So many boys and girls are average just like many adults are average. Many are below average academically, but often they are the ones who prove to be the best shot in basketball, the best hit in the softball team or can make the best fudge in cooking class. Now these are accomplishments! They are positive forces. If such an outlet is found, the students will not be looking for destructive student activities.

Now what are these interest activities? Each week one hour is spent in learning a skill - becoming proficient in a field we enjoy. These classes do not interfere with the regular schedule, for both the time and day rotate. Any one of my math classes will miss its regular session only once a month. One week the activity is held on Thursday, April 16, at 1:30, next week on Friday, April 24, at 2:30, and so on. You can see that it provides a break from the regular schedule - the monotony of the same old classes is broken. I'm sure some want only to "get out of class," but most truly enjoy and look forward to these experiences. Here is a partial list of activities the students can choose from: intramural teams in softball or football, weight-lifting, cooking, sewing, current event discussion, drama or art projects, school newspaper, guitar lessons, choral groups, bowling, roller skating, chess, checkers, bait casting techniques, remedial tutoring, book clubs and science club.

Drawbacks: Well, it is extra work for the teachers but the only truly upsetting factor is that some children are just not interested in anything. Perhaps, it is confidence they lack, resulting from taking part in so few previous experiences. They hesitate to join any group and are the ones who most need to feel that they, as individuals, do have a special field in which they excel. I remember with regret, how three unhappy, forlorn young girls, watching from the sidelines as the girls in my "Cheerleading" group took turns leading the peppy group I've ever seen. (Excluding, of course, the Red Peppers.) I asked the lonely ones if they wanted to join the group. I was somewhat relieved when they said no. (For my forty five charges had already out-peppered their teacher.) Now, as I think back, I am sorry and quite ashamed I didn't reach out and take these girls by the hand to lead them to the group. They probably had dreamed many times of being a cheerleader, and wanted so badly to join our group. Some dreams can be realized, but they need help. I wasn't smart enough to realize it at the time, and chances are I'll never have that opportunity again. There will be other children to help. But first I must listen -- so must you.

Girl Jockey Top Derby Attraction

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A field of 13 3-year-olds, the lack of a solid favorite and Diane Crump. That's the mixture ready to boil over in Saturday's wide-open and history-making Kentucky Derby.

The catalyst is Miss Crump, who will be the first girl jockey to ride in America's most famous horse race.

Lacking an attention - getting colt, such as Majestic Prince, this 96th renewal of the Derby at Churchill Downs soared in public interest when the 2-year-old Miss Crump was named to ride W. L. Lyons Brown's Fathom.

The first colt entered Thursday for the 1 1/4-mile, $125,000-added classic was Sonny Werblin's Silent Screen, the 1969 juvenile champion who has won only one of four starts this year, and the last was William C. Robinson Jr.'s Admiral's Shield, winner of Tuesday's one-mile Derby Trial.

Those whose names passed the entry box in between included Samuel J. Agnew's Terzaghi, the Santa Anita Derby winner and the early 7-2 pick for Saturday, and Raymond Curtis' My Dad George, the 4-1 second pick who won the Flamingo, Florida Derby and Stepping Stone Purse consecutively.

If all 18 leave the gate at 5:00 p.m., EDT, the gross purse will be a Derby record $171,300, with a record $128,800 to the winner. Coverage on television will be from 5:45 p.m. and on radio from 5:30-6 p.m. CBS will handle both.

The forecast calls for mild weather with a chance of thunderstorms. The usual crowd - traditionally estimated by Churchill Downs at 100,000 - will be on hand.

Also entered were the Ethel D. Jacobs pair of Personality and High Echelon, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gary's Corn Off The Cob, Alan Magerman's George Lewis, Robert Lehmann's Dust Commander, Mrs. J. S. Dean Jr.'s Holy Land, Charles Engelhard's Protanto and Her-Jac Stable's Naska.

Joining Fathom as field horses - horses grouped as one betting interest - were Lin-Drake Farm's Dr. Behrman, Steve Carson's and Irving Apple's Rancho Lejos, Dr. Richard Kuhn's and Walter Hickey's Robin's Bug, the Wolfson Brothers' Native Royalty and E. V. Benjamin III's and J. M. Jones Jr.'s Action Getter.

Bill Shoemaker will take Terzaghi out of the No. 14 post, with My Dad George just inside him under Ray Broussard. Bill Hartack will send George Lewis out of the No. 1 slot and Angel Cordero Jr. will leave No. 18 on Corn Off The Cob. Corn Off The Cob is the co-third favorite at 5-1, with High Echelon, No. 12, and Larry Adams, and Personality, No. 17, and Eddie Belmonte.

It was thought Belmonte might miss the Derby after a mount he rode at Aqueduct Wednesday was disqualified and he was faced with a 10-day suspension. The New York stewards ruled Thursday, however, Belmonte was blameless.

Other jockey assignments are Dust Commander, Mike Manganello; Holy Land, Hector Pilar; Rancho Lejos, Rudy Campas; Silent Screen, John L. Rotz; Robin's Bug, Leroy Moyers, the breeder of the colt; Protanto, Jorge Velasquez; Dr. Behrman, Chuck Baltazar; Action Getter, Mike Venezia; Naska, Braulio Baeza; Admiral's Shield, Jimmy Nichols; and Native Royalty, no boy.

Warf Fires SHS Record

Coach Gene Dawson's golf squad completed a successful week of competition, in which they defeated both Dexter and Poplar Bluff and finished in a tie for second at Poplar Bluff. An individual record was set by the quads Jim Warf, who finished the Sikeston Country Clubs 35 par course at a school record setting 33.

Monday afternoon the squad traveled to Poplar Bluff to participate in a triple meet against Blytheville and Poplar Bluff. Blytheville won the meet with a 318 total, while the Dogs and the Mules were deadlocked in second place at 325.

Warf was medalist during the match, as the senior golfer fired a 74. The rest of the squad finished with Tom Dawson at 82, Doug Shaw 84, and Mike Shaffar 85.

The Bulldogs then moved into their record setting match with the Dexter Bearcats, where Warf led the field with his 33, and the team finished with a low 152 total, only a single stroke short of the state match record at 151. Dawson finished behind Warf with a 35, par for the course, Shaw and Shaffar each shot 42. Sikeston also took the B-Match, as the three member team finished with a 132-152 edge, Dennis Meyer, Mark Shaw, and Joe Crenshaw all wound up with 44s in the B-match.

Wednesday the golfers traveled west into Poplar Bluff again, and took the match away from the Mules in a 157-167 contest. Shaffar, Warf, and Paul Johnson all finished the round with 39's and Tom Dawson finished with a 40. The Mules' MacMurray took medalist honors with a 38, while teammates Mickey shot a 41, Baracine 43, and Locke 45.

Monday the golf squad will travel back to Poplar Bluff to compete in the district meet. The 18-hole contest will begin at 4 p.m.

Bahnsen Hurls Yankees' First Complete Game

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have been waiting for Stan Bahnsen to become a complete pitcher.

Thursday night he became the only one they have.

In the 21st game of the season, the Yankees finally got complete game No. 1, and it wasn't from pitching ace Mel Stottlemyre or Fritz Peterson but rather from the one-time Bahnsen burner, whose flame flickered out last season after he was 17-12 and Rookie of the Year in 1968.

The 25-year-old right-hander throttled the California Angels on five hits 1-0 and reversed his own personal shutout trend. He had been on the losing end of the two blanks the Yanks suffered earlier.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City stopped Detroit 3-2 on Bob Oliver's 10th-inning double, Washington bombed Milwaukee 12-2, the Chicago White Sox clipped Baltimore 6-3, Minnesota whipped Cleveland 4-1 and Boston outlasted Oakland 4-1.

Roy White's long sacrifice fly in the third inning following singles by Horace Clarke and Bobby Murcer gave Bahnsen his 1-0 lead and he protected it with an assortment of fast balls, curves, sliders and change-ups.

He struck out only two Angels but picked up 17 outs on ground balls.

"He was making them hit the breaking ball," said manager Ralph Houk. "I thought the way he mixed up his pitches was the best ever for him. In so many games he looks like he's trying to throw the ball by the hitters. He'll strike out so many in the first four or five innings, then get his pitches up and get hurt." Houk had the bullpen ready to go after Sandy Alomar opened the ninth with his third hit. But he went with Bahnsen and didn't live to regret it as Bill Voss bounced into a double play and Jim Fregosi flied out.

Kansas City nipped Detroit when Oliver slammed a two-out double in the 10th following a walk to Amos Otis. Otis and Joe Keough hit solo homers for the Royals in the sixth.

The Tigers got their first run on a weird play in the sixth. Cesar Gutierrez tripled and the Royals decided to appeal that he missed first base. But pitcher Bill Butler heaved the ball into right field and Gutierrez scampered home. They tied it in the eighth on a walk and Al Kaline's triple.

Frank Howard and Bertie Allen crashed three-run homers Detroit 3-2 on Bob Oliver's 10th-inning double, Washington bombed Milwaukee 12-2, the Chicago White Sox clipped Baltimore 6-3, Minnesota whipped Cleveland 4-1 and Boston outlasted Oakland 4-1.

The White Sox pushed across four unearned runs in the sixth and Duane Josephson hammered a two-run double in the seventh as Tommy John, with help from Wilbur Wood in the eighth, beat the Orioles for his first triumph and tourney director, announced this morning following last night's two-inch rain.

The title game between the Sikeston Bulldogs and Lillbourn Panthers was reset for 3 p.m. Saturday.

Ryan Slips But Not Enough for Giants

Nolan Ryan dazzled National League batters during April but the flame-throwing New York Mets' right-hander closed out the month on a gradual downhill slide.

The 23-year-old speedballer set down San Francisco 4-1 Thursday, limiting the Giants to three hits while striking out eight and walking eight. Not a bad performance, however, considering Ryan's two previous starts.

A one-hitter in a 7-0 victory over Philadelphia on April 18, striking out 15 batters and

A two hitter in which he dropped a 1-0 decision to Los Angeles, April 25, striking out five.

Thursday's performance by the Alvin, Tex., resident, evened his record in two-plus major league seasons to 14-14 and he has now struck out 259 batters in 252 innings.

The 6-foot-2, 196-pounder's credentials for this season: An 0.69 earned run average in 26 innings, two earned runs, six hits, 28 strikeouts, 20 walks and a 2-1 record.

Atlanta creamed Chicago 9-2 and Los Angeles edged Montreal 2-1 in the only other NL games played. Houston at St. Louis was called by rain.

Ryan's third complete game of the season gave him more than he had all of last year when he finished but two games in a 6-3 season. His victory also was

Big Red Parts With Crenshaw

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Denver Broncos of the National Football League said today they have obtained running back Willie Crenshaw from the St. Louis Cardinals.

In exchange the Broncos will turn over to St. Louis their third choice in the 1971 draft of college seniors.

Crenshaw, from Kansas State, is a six-year veteran of pro football. He is 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 200 pounds.

His best year for the Cardinals was in 1968 when he averaged four yards per carry with 83 yards rushing and scored six touchdowns. Used mainly as a reserve last season, Crenshaw gained 172 yards and scored three touchdowns.

Three Rivers Wins Twice

POPLAR BLUFF — The Three Rivers Junior College baseball team won a doubleheader from Paducah Junior College here Thursday, 9 to 0 and 6 to 2.

In the double victory the Three Rivers nine scored a no-hit game, as pitcher Bill Drish struck out eight, and allowed but five on base, all on walks.

Three Rivers scored six runs in the first, including a grand slam home run by Gary Blaylock, and went on to score three in the second.

In the second victory Three Rivers scored four runs in the third, and two in the fourth.

Paducah scored two unearned runs, one each in the third and seventh innings, and were allowed but two hits, to nine for the winners.

the world champion Mets 10th triumph in April, establishing a club record. Ryan's eight bases on balls also set a club record.

Ryan was supported by Tommie Agee's homer and a two-run single by Joe Foy. Bud Harrelson tripled and was driven home by Cleon Jones' single for the Mets' other tally. The Giants lone run came on a walk, a single by Hal Lanier, a sacrifice and Bobby Bonds' groundout.

Also closing out a torrid month of April was the hot-hitting left fielder of the Braves, Rico Carty. Carty boomed two homers, including a grand slam in the first inning and Hank Aaron and Hal King chipped in with solo blasts in the Braves rout of the Cubs.

Carty's homers, his sixth and seventh of the season, also stretched his hitting streak to 20 games and upped his batting average to .423, second best in the league. He also has driven in 23 runs.

George Stone, 31 stopped the Cubs on six hits and struck out a career high of 10 batters.

Jim Hickman rapped a homer off the southpaw in the ninth inning, making a total of 34 roundtrippers hit out of Atlanta Stadium in nine games. All five blasts Thursday night carried over 400 feet with Aaron's estimated at over 500 feet.

Chicago's Billy Williams became the first player in NL history to play in 1,000 straight games but went hitless in four trips.

Rookie right-hander Sandy Vance scattered four hits in gaining his first major league victory and got all the support he needed when the Dodgers scored twice in the opening inning.

Singles by Maury Wills and Ted Sizemore and a walk to Willie Davis loaded the bases. Andy Kosco struck out but Wes Parker walked to force in one run and a forceout bouncer by Willie Crawford brought in the other.

Montreal's run came in the fourth when Kosco slammed into the right field wall while chasing Bobby Wine's fly ball. Wine flew around the bases for an inside-the-park homer and Kosco had to leave the game with a bruised cheekbone and a laceration inside his ear.

Vance, a 23-year-old, recalled from the Pacific Coast League to fill Bill Singer's spot in the starting rotation, struck out three and walked three.

Goal by Keenan Lifts Blues Into NHL Finals

PITTSBURGH AP — Scoring winning goals is the story of Larry Keenan's life with the St. Louis Blues. He admits he's an opportunist. But then he has to be-he never knows when he may be shipped back to the club's farm team.

His latest opportunity came Thursday night when he shoved in the winning goal with 5:35 to go in the game as the Blues edged the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3 to advance to the National Hockey League finals with the Boston Bruins.

He played hurt. His thumb was jammed in the first half. He didn't score at all in the third period, then came back for 15 points in the final quarter, just enough to hold off the Knicks who needed the overtime period to take a lead of two games to one in the NBA title set.

West Says He'll Play in Spite of Doctor's Wishes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jerry West says he'll play tonight against the New York Knicks even though his doctor says he shouldn't.

The ace of the Los Angeles Lakers left nothing to doubt. His left hand was encased in bandage, but he declared: "We will beat them. We should have beaten them Wednesday night. This time we will."

West, the leading scorer of the National Basketball Association, suffered a jammed thumb on Wednesday night as his Lakers lost 111-108 to the Knicks in overtime.

It might have ended more quickly except that Jerry, with 34 points in all, slammed home a desperation 35-footer at the buzzer that ended the regulation time at 102-102.

DuQuoin Fairgrounds Spring Concert Site

DU QUOIN, ILL. — Show time is still 8 p.m. at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds, but the date—May 24—is much earlier than ever before as Hayes Fair Acres, Inc. announced plans to enter the concert field.

"In order to make better use of our existing facilities, we have scheduled a two-hour outdoor spring concert and are excited over the fact that we were able to get the incredibly outstanding B. J. Thomas as our featured entertainer," President Bill
Hayes said.

Although one of the country's most popular vocalists since being voted "The Most Promising Male Vocalist" in Billboard's 1966 year-end edition, Thomas is at an all-time peak now.

He was chosen by Burt Bacharach and Hal David to sing their tune, "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head," in the Paul Newman film, "Butch Cassidy
And The Sundance Kid." Since then the tune has sold more than two million copies and was an award winner at the recent Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Science presentations in Hollywood.

Webelos Day

Set for June 18

CAPE GIRARDEAU — June
18 will be Webelos Day from 1 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. at Camp
Lewallen in the Southeast
Missouri Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Webelos Scouts are boys, who are 10 and in a Webelos Den. These boys will soon be old enough to be Boy Scouts.

Webelos Day is an opportunity for these boys to become acquainted with summer camp and to have fun along with their fathers. Some Packs do not have Webelos Dens so the boys in these packs who are 10 years old are invited along with their fathers to participate in Webelos
Day activities.

Each Cubmaster has received material as to the procedure for signing up boys and their dads.

Webelos Leaders and Cubmasters are invited to attend.

Appearing with Thomas will be "The Jaggerz," a popular rock music group which currently has a number of hit records on the top-sellers list.

The Du Quoin fairgrounds will continue to be busy throughout the summer months.

Following the May 24
Thomas concert, the 29th annual Egyptian Music Camp will invade June 7 and conduct four one-week sessions through July 3. A sparkling July 4th event is currently being formulated and details will be announced in the near future.
The 1970 Holiday Ramblers Traveler Trailer Club's national convention involving an estimated 4,500 persons will be held here July 19-24.

The Du Quoin State Fair will retain its same format, opening Saturday, August 29, and closing on Labor Day, Sept. 7.

"Even though a number of others, including such highly recognized operations as the Mun Opera in St. Louis, have indicated plans to become more active in the concert field, we feel people in Southern Illinois will appreciate the opportunity of seeing and hearing some of the country's finest entertainers at our facility. When we can provide them, we plan to do so,"
Hayes added.

All seats in the 8,300-seat grandstand will be reserved for the B. J. Thomas show. Priced at $3, $4 and $5, they may be obtained by writing B. J.
Thomas Show, Box 182, Du orders may be made by calling

Nixon Orders Sale of Two Pleasure Boats

WASHINGTON (AP) —
President Nixon has ordered deactivation and sale of two presidential cabin cruisers—the "Patricia" and "Julie" to save an estimated $200,000 a year, the White House announced Tuesday.

The two pleasure boats have been used by five presidents.
Originally taken over by the Coast Guard in World War II, they were assigned after the war
for use of President Harry S.
Truman and his family.

Nixon's 24-year-old daughter,
Tricia, for whom Nixon renamed the 90-foot cabin cruiser known as the "Honey Fitz" under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, participated in deactivation ceremonies at the Navy Yard Wednesday. She also received plaques with the names of the two boats removed from the sterns of the vessels.

The White House said the cutbacks will give the government "the smallest presidential boating operation in size and numbers" since 1933-35
when President Franklin D.
Roosevelt made use of the Navy yacht "Sequoia." This 100-foot vessel, which the government purchased in 1931, will be the only remaining presidential boat.

Brides and Brides-Elect

Brucker-Burford

CHAFFEE — Twin baskets of white gladioli and white pompon chrysanthemums enhanced the setting at St. Denis Catholic Church in Benton last Saturday for the wedding of Miss Geraldine Florence Brucker and Ronald Joseph Burford.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Craig, and Mrs. Charles Klueppel of Benton was organist. She accompanied the soloist Mrs. Edward Westrich of New Hamburg, sister of the bridegroom.

The former Miss Brucker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Brucker of Chaffee, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Burford of Benton.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride appeared in a formal gown of organza and Chantilly lace over taffeta. The bodice was overlaid with lace and the dress featured a high mandarin collar, full, sheer bishop sleeves, an empire bodice and gathers at the side and back, forming a fullness in the skirt. Her headpiece, a mantilla of illusion, was edged with galloon Chantilly lace and swept to a chapel length. The mantilla was secured with a Camelot cap, covered with lace and sprinkled with jewels. She carried a nosegay of white pompon chrysanthemums and yellow roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Marilyn Brucker, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Blueck, Miss Carolyn Dirnberger, Oran and Mrs. Michael A. Brucker, Monroe, La., sister-in-law of the bride.

Flower girl was Miss Amelia Burford, niece of the bridegroom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Burford, Chicago, Ill., and ringbearer was Steven Westrich, nephew of the bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Westrich of New Hamburg.

Vernon Burford of Benton served his brother as best man, and groomsmen were Michael A. Brucker, John Burford, Benton, brother of the bridegroom, and Gerald Heuring, New Hamburg. Ushers were Gary Burford, Charleston, brother of the bridegroom, and Richard Heuring, Kelso.

A dinner and dance followed the ceremony at the New Hamburg School Hall, and Miss Nancy Johnson of Commerce was guest of honor.

Mrs. Burford, a 1969 graduate of Kelly High School, Benton, is employed as a ward secretary by Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. Mr. Burford, a 1968 graduate of Kelly High School, is employed by Kaiser Aluminum in New Madrid.

The newlyweds are residing at Ferrell's Trailer Park in Benton.

Memphis Art Academy, and studied oil painting in Yuma, Arizona.

Adkins, formally of Bald Knob, has a B.S.A. degree from the University of Arkansas. He was a member of Sigma Chi fraternity and a member of the Razorback football squad. He is employed by Hull-Dobbs Ford City of Memphis, Tennessee.

North Acres General Baptist Church will be the setting for the May 9 wedding. The couple plan to make their home in Memphis.

Mrs. Michael E. Jaffe

Hillhouse-Jaffe

CHARLESTON — An altar draped in orchid and purple net, with greenery appointments, branched candelabra and a large arrangement of pink snapdragons, gladioli, purple and blue iris and baby's breath formed the setting April 5 at the First Baptist Church here for the wedding of Miss Jana Lee Hillhouse and Michael E. Jaffe. Multi-colored nosegays with floor-length streamers decorated the pews.

The Rev. H. W. Chaney performed the double ring ceremony, and Tim Vowels of St. Louis was organist. A special song was played, tape recorded by the late Miss Christine Brewer, aunt of the bride.

The former Miss Hillhouse is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Hillhouse of Charleston, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Spencer Jaffe of Sarasota, Fla.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown with long tapered sleeves of orchid peau de soie. Tiny self-covered buttons trimmed the front of the gown from the wedding ring collar to the hem. Over the gown the bride wore an A-line sleeveless tunic of the same fabric and color, trimmed with tiny seed pearls and crystal around the neckline and down both sides of the open front.

Her headpiece was of silk organza, draped in soft folds in a turban effect and the fingertip veil was attached to the side and fell in a drape over one shoulder. She carried a single white purple-throated orchid with lavender net and ribbon with white streamers.

Miss Debbie DeLaney, Charleston, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Paul Slinkerd, Memphis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, with Miss Lisa Hillhouse serving as her sister's junior bridesmaid.

Candlelighters were Mrs. James Hillhouse, Boulder, Colo., sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Sharon Spitzmiller, Sikeston.

Miss Rebel Story, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The bridegroom chose Jay Woodruff of Kansas City as best man. Groomsmen were brothers of the bride, James Hillhouse, Boulder, Colo., and John Hillhouse, who also served as ushers with Tad Story, cousin of the bride, and Robbie DeField.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Charleston County Club, where decorations followed a pink and lavender theme.

Serving guests were Sue Mullin, Jonesboro, Ark., cousin of the bride, Mrs. James Hillhouse, and Mrs. John Nunnelee.

Mrs. Jaffe attended Charleston schools and graduated from the Lausanne School at Memphis, Tenn., in 1967. She attended the University of Miami and Memphis State University in Memphis. Mr. Jaffe is a 1969 graduate of Memphis State University.

After a wedding trip, the newlyweds are at home in Sarasota, where Mr. Jaffe is employed by American Metal Products, Inc.

Mrs. Harry Kyle Barr III

Field-Barr

SPRING LAKE, N.J.; Saint Catherine Roman Catholic church was the location of the wedding of Mary Elizabeth Field and Harry Kyle Barr III. The nuptial Mass was performed by the Right Reverend Monsignor John L. Grimes.

The bride wore a gown of ivory silk organza appliqued with ivory alencon lace. The train was of the same fabrics as the gown. The bride's silk tulle veil was attached to an alencon lace band, and she carried a bouquet of white roses centered with a baby white orchid.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Spring Lake Golf and Country Club.

Miss Adrienne Gnassi was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Ann Barr and Mrs. Richard Barkauskos, sisters of the groom.

Michael Blanton Barr, brother of the groom, was best man. Peter Karl Schumann and John Malcolm Barr served as ushers, the latter a brother of the groom.

Marry Now Enjoy Honeymoon Later

AP Newsfeatures

More and more couples are postponing the big, expensive honeymoon trip for later in their marriage preferring to take numerous mini-trips while they adjust to married life. The question of expense is solved in several ways, such as a special savings account, or a set of sleeping bags, or, in the case of a growing number of newlyweds, the self-contained camper.

David and Jamie Shapiro, representatives of the "gala honeymoon later" idea, tool around the countryside week-ends in a 24-foot motor home which was an imaginative yet practical wedding gift from both sets of parents. Their enthusiasm for their "traveling roof" is boundless.

"My parents always longed for a summer house, but, for years, couldn't afford to build one," says 22-year-old David, who holds an M.A. from Columbia and teaches English at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. "With the motor home, if we can one day scrape up enough to buy half an acre on a lake, we can vacation on it immediately. Meanwhile, we're having a ball traveling with no motel and restaurant bills."

Native New Yorkers, the Shapiros chose for their first trip nearby Bucks County, Pa., one of the most historic areas in the country, celebrated for the spot where Washington crossed the Delaware to turn the tide of the Revolution at Trenton.

Jamie, a blue-eyed blonde, taking an M.A. in Chinese toward a U.N. translator's job, admits a passion for antiquing. "But we're both history buffs, too, and now that we have our house along we stop and read all the historical markers on the road instead of rushing past. Bucks County has marvelous old, old houses and covered bridges that really knocked us out. And the scenery in the northern area was so lush we'd stop every few miles, make a cup of coffee and just sit and stare."

The Shapiros got some stares themselves as they drove through the narrow streets of the artist's colony town of New Hope. David, who would like one day to make his mark as a TV comedy writer says, "Everyone's seen a trailer, but the self-contained motor home is new in the East. Sometimes we kid about charging a fee to let people see the inside. We stopped at the 265-year-old Thompson-Neely House, where Washington conferred with his officers about crossing the Delaware, and the custodians took turns examining our house while we explored theirs."

The air-conditioned motor home, which the young couple affectionately call "Winnie", sleeps six adults, has a kitchen, dinette, bathroom and a cushioned lounge which converts into bunk beds. Everything works without having to be hooked up with outside sources so that the Shapiros can settle for the night on a side street, a motel parking lot or a scenic area along the road.

"You become more attached to a motor home than a stationary house," David said. "We lock our apartment and leave it behind, but Winnie shares all the best times—all those mini honeymoons—with us."

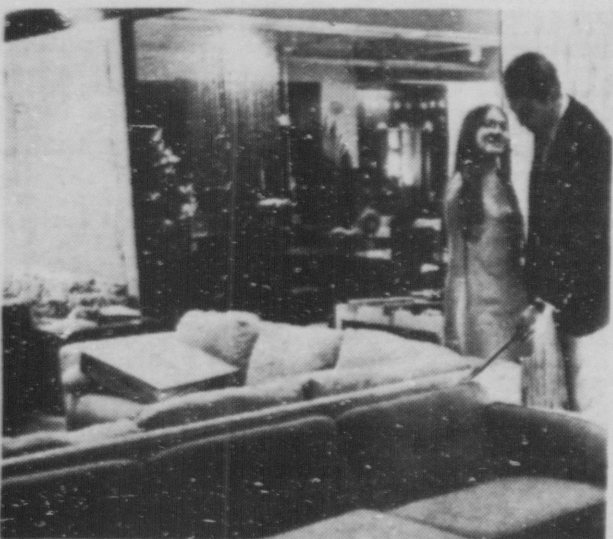

TWO HUNDRED years and lots of history separate the 18th Century Old Ferry Inn from the 20th Century motor home taking the Shapiros on their honeymoon. General Washington had dinner here before his historic crossing on Christmas night 1776, although the Inn then was smaller and the patriot ate in the basement kitchen.

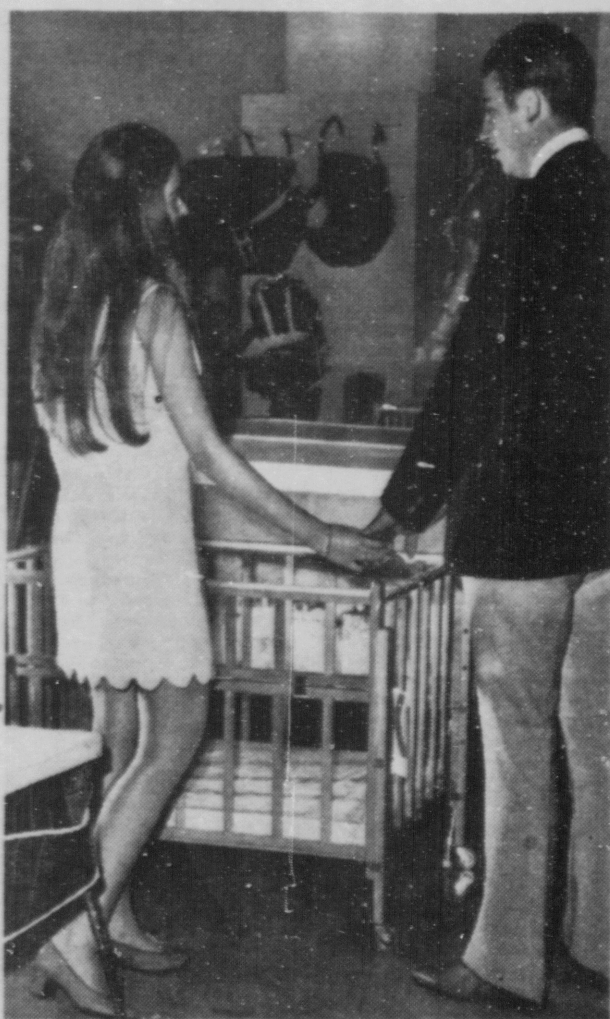

Newlywed Shopping Under One Roof Is Answer Department Store Is Way of Life

LAMPS are but a few of the many things needed to furnish that dream home.

PRICE TAGS can not be ignored by the realistic couple who realize the dangers of starting a life together overburdened by monthly payments.

SOMEDAY they may be in the market for small furniture, the kind that fits in a nursery.

WHAT SHIP WAS CALLED "CHEESEBOX ON A RAFT"?

The Swedish American inventor John Ericsson, built the iron battleship Monitor which critics called a "cheesebox on a raft".

Department stores are as much a part of any city, U.S.A., as post offices, drive-ins, gas stations, and neon lights.

Their success must relate to the national temperament. Most Americans could not spare time for shopping the many-stop-system that was used for so long by all other peoples of the world and is still being used by many.

It fractures the imagination to try visualize a busy homemaker going to the bakery for bread, the milk shop for milk, the pork shop for bacon, the fish market for fish, the staples shop for flour and rice. She'd have to change her whole design for living; give up job, community activities, golf and bridge, and the family chauffeuring.

It wouldn't only be the purchase of food that would be so time consuming. It would apply to shopping for clothing, fabrics, and household furnishing.

Now with a stop at the supermarket, that food type of department store, and another stop at the department store, she can find all she needs to keep herself and her family fed, clothed, medicated, scrubbed, and beautified, and her home furnished, functioning, and clean.

Granted, boutiques are increasing in popularity, or more accurately regaining their popularity. They are fun and quaintly mod. But few of the budget watching parents, in the process of raising children, or young marrieds who haven't had time to build up the bank account can afford to indulge. Specialty shops are a luxury. They can not compete in "choice and quality for your money" as can the large stores who buy in quantity.

Also for the convenient time payment plans, it is the larger stores that can more easily accommodate the young who have cut themselves off from parental purse strings and are ready and anxious to accumulate a home and a family. Generally, they are long on needs and short on cash.

And for many a couple the department store in their city has become a practical, satisfactory way of life, the life they are planning together.

SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL, SIKESTON, MISSOURI

SERVING THE STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF OF SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL SINCE 1936.

Education Is Important; Students Must Seek This

TODAY'S YOUTH have many opportunities for education; it is a shame more students don't take advantage of these opportunities.

Many students don't realize the great burden a teacher carries with him for just one day. Their 24-hour day barely allows them time for their families much less a dozen troublesome students.

Students who come to school with the attitude that they are being forced to come and therefore should be given grades for work they don't do, are sadly mistaken.

By requirement of law, a student must attend school until he reaches the age of 16. After this, he is on his own. He must make up his mind whether or not he will make something of himself.

If a student could go through one day as a teacher who has spent much time, energy, and money to be a qualified teacher, he would then see why he feels as he does about frequent absences and homework that has not been done.

Students must first care about themselves before they can care about their education. It is a rare and precious thing in many countries to have a good education. Are students in the United States so spoiled that they cannot see the need or feel the want of an education?

Remember, the teachers had much rather have one student who is genuinely interested in his education than a thousand who care nothing!

Seniors Set New Goals As Schools Days Close

ON THE EVENING of May 28 the seniors of the class of '70 will close a short chapter of their lives.

Those years of childish pleasure, the joys and anxieties of growing up, the trivial problems that seemed so important will be only memories locked away in the attics of their minds.

It is time to begin a new chapter, an exciting, challenging, eventful, frustrating, sad, happy, interesting chapter. Seniors will add to it every day of their lives. All their accomplishments and failures will help to compile this new chapter.

How will they close the next chapter of their lives? Will it be a happy ending, or a sad one? Remember always that people are the authors of their own lives; therefore, the ending is left up to the individual.

Years ahead will not be easy ones. Many times people will feel like closing their eyes and ending their struggle for life, but time ticks on relentlessly, completely unsympathetic to personal hardships. People must learn to trudge on and do their best to make their lives happy.

Today's graduating seniors will accomplish great feats and suffer failures. They will experience great joy and bitter sorrow. They will grow in stature with the years. Make the best of those years!

Set high goals and work toward them, have faith in mankind, follow a dream and transform it into a reality, for the greatest things on earth began as dreams in the minds of men.

Today's generation has inherited a world of many evils, but it is a beautiful world with many wonderful rewards awaiting those persons who are strong enough to work for them. It is a world where the ability to accept responsibility is that golden key of success.

Years of basic training are over and the seniors are thrust out into the world to make their own way. They must do their best to cure the ills of society, to build bridges of love and understanding, to restore faith and strength to the disillusioned and to the weak.

It is a challenge — a difficult challenge, but aren't all worthwhile ventures difficult?

Accept the challenge, respond to the cry, fight for a better world so that the next generation can have the same opportunities that this generation has enjoyed.

As the three-act drama unfolds, Freda and Sam Benson find out that their son, Larry, has been killed and that this stranger thinks that he is Larry.

This conflict is the main plot of the play, but the Bensons' recent separation also provides an interesting conflict which involves their young daughter, Jessie, who is unsure about her feelings toward her father.

As the play moves into the second and third acts, emotions are aroused and there are many heated arguments between the Bensons and The Boy.

Miss Barbara Brown is director of the play, and she is assisted by Joel Allen.

Mike Long, Patty Bush, Dan Overbey and Debbie Collins will be the featured speakers at the annual commencement exercises Thursday, May 28, at 7 p.m.

Well, it's that time of week again, lucky readers! All the Barker's faithful readers will surely remember that hapless Marianne had been imprisoned in the basement bedroom of the High house.

Tom had decided to come and rescue his beloved princess from a fate worse than death. He could not bear to be away from her. Besides, she was wearing his favorite sweatshirt.

As Tom rattled on foolishly, Marianne thought swiftly and cunningly.

"Tom? If you really want to see me you'll help me get out of here."

"But how, honey? Gosh! Gee! I mean I'd do anything for you."

"Anything?"

"Anything? By, golly you know I would."

"Then shut up and get busy!" screamed tactful little Marianne. "Now here's what I want you to do. Go upstairs and steal the key to this door and then come and let me out. Got it?"

"I... I think so."

"Good. Now hurry."

After several tries with the wrong keys, Tom succeeded in releasing Marianne, who succeeded in locking Tom in the room.

"But Marianne, why are you locking me up?" asked dumbfounded Tom.

"Pure logic, that's why. They locked me in there, didn't they? So to make my escape a success they must find someone still locked up, so they won't think I've escaped."

"Oh, I see." Tom was amazed at how smart Marianne was.

As he stood in the room admiring her intelligence, her kindness, her innocence, and her sweetness, Marianne was busy spilling kerosene all over the basement. After a few moments she stopped at Tom's door.

"Tom?"

"Yes, dear?"

"I want you to count to 10 three times and then I want you to come out here, the door will be unlocked, and I want you to close your eyes and light me a cigarette. O.K.?"

"Anything for you, Marianne."

The next day Marianne was sitting in the recreation room of the Burbank Institution for Wayward Girls and Kooks In General telling her friends how the poor Highs had left her life in a blaze of fire.

Be sure and read next week's episode about Marianne's stay at the institution and her new foster parents.

Hartzell, Delores Coots, Linda Johnson, and Bobby Bye were the members of Sikeston's team.

Sikeston was also represented in the state contests by a spelling team composed of Patrice Haines, Connie Snow, and Janet Hedrick.

Susan Dawson Is B&PW Girl

Susan Dawson was honored as "outstanding senior girl" by the Sikeston Business and Professional Women's Club Sunday morning at a breakfast at the El Capri.

Each month the Civic Participation Committee selects an outstanding senior girl who has shown active participation in career-oriented clubs or classes or on-the-job training.

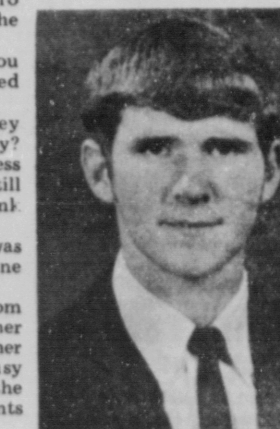

Business and Professional Women honor the girls by having them as a guest at a meeting of the organization, and they receive a charm denoting the honor.

Susan was chosen for cadet teaching, and she is an instructor in the Matthews elementary school.

Among Susan's activities are Red Peppers, girls' intramurals, and Future Teachers of America. She serves as secretary of FTA. Susan won the title of Miss Sikeston 1969 at the Cotton Carnival last fall and will hold the position until September 1970.

Susan is a member of the varsity cheerleading squad and has attended a cheerleading clinic for the past two summers. She also works at the Sikeston IGA supermarket.

Bush, Parmented Are Recipients Of Award

Seniors Patty Bush and Joel Parmenter were presented the '69-70 Dr. Tom L. Chidester Memorial Award Saturday night at the final production of the play "Finian's Rainbow."

This award is presented to the high school student who has devoted more time and energy to the Sikeston Little Theatre, than any other student.

Members of the Little Theatre board were presented with 25 nominees for the award, and they eliminated 20 of these.

From the five finalists, the board considered the contributions made by each nominee and decided that Patty and Joel were the most deserving.

Mrs. Theda Mae Cleek presented the award at the intermission of "Finian's Rainbow."

Mrs. Cleek read a list of Patty's and Joel's accomplishments and she presented them with a large plaque on which their names were inscribed.

Patty has long been interested in theatre, especially in musical productions. She has taken dancing lessons since childhood, and is very accomplished in the field of choreography.

Not only has Patty worked behind stage in Little Theatre plays, but she also starred in the "King and I" as Eliza. In this play she was featured in a large dance production where she did a solo dance.

In 1967 she worked in the chorus and backstage in the musical "South Pacific." The following year she was again featured in a dream sequence dance number with Tom Jobe in "Oklahoma." She also worked in the chorus of that play and was in charge of choreography.

In 1969 she again did choreography for "Showboat" and appeared in the chorus.

Gruidl Receives Science Award

Sophomore Mike Gruidl received third place with his science entry in the state finals of the Missouri Junior Academy of Science in Warrensburg last Saturday.

Mike had entered his project that dealt with the Effects of Thermal Pollution on Hybognathus Nuchales in this district contest and also in the Southeast Missouri District Science Fair.

Mike was one of seven students from Southeast Missouri eligible to participate in the state finals of the Junior Academy of Science.

Instructor of biology Murray Sullivan accompanied Mike to Warrensburg.

God's Presence

by Larry Johnson

I have heard Him in the thunder
In the patter of the rain,
And His voice has made me wonder
At the might His hand contains.

I have seen Him in the forest
Where the tall trees long have stood,
And the living creatures chorus
"God who fashioned us is good."

I have felt Him in the quiet
In the peace when holds sway,
There is a God, I can't deny it,
For He speaks to me each day.

Others faced Him on a hilltop
Where He gave His only son,
But I bow my soul in anguish
'Twas for me the deed was done."

In the Book of books I met Him
See His footprints on each page,
Hear His voice, the words He's spoken;
To people of each age.

As He is, some day, I'll see Him
Talk with Him face to face;
I shall thank Him for His blessing
Praise Him for "Amazing Grace."

Like Dr. Chidester, Joel is mainly a backstage man. He has been in charge of lights for six productions and has worked diligently in building the sets right along with his father.

Among the plays that Joel has worked lights for are "Seven Nuns in Las Vegas," "Showboat," "Mousetrap," "Blood, Sweat, and Stanley Poole," and "Finian's Rainbow."

Mrs. Cleek explained what the Chidester Award is before presenting the seniors with the honors.

Since Dr. Chidester meant so much to the development of Sikeston's Little Theatre, the members decided to give awards to young people, whom he loved to work with, in his honor.

Last year's recipient of the award was John Black.

In 1967 she worked in the chorus and backstage in the musical "South Pacific." The following year she was again featured in a dream sequence dance number with Tom Jobe in "Oklahoma." She also worked in the chorus of that play and was in charge of choreography.

In 1969 she again did choreography for "Showboat" and appeared in the chorus.

Joel has been very active in every phase of Little Theatre's presentations since he was a child. He has numerous accomplishments to his credit.

He had a large role in Little Theatre's production of "A Man Called Peter."

School Safety Patrols Marks 50th Birthday

ST. LOUIS — The School Safety Patrol, which has numbered more than 20 million boys and girls during the past half century, celebrates its 50th anniversary today with more than 30,000 Missouri members on duty.

The Patrol, comprised of elementary and junior high school students, is sponsored by participating schools and The Auto Club of Missouri, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association.

This month The Auto Club will send each school certificate to distribute to graduating Patrol members for their service to their classmates, school, and community.

It is the individual members who make the Patrol an important part of a community's overall program to eliminate pedestrian traffic accidents.

A glance at the record will reveal just how vital this role has been. Since 1935, when records first were kept, the national pedestrian death rate for children ages five to 14 has been cut by more than 50 per cent.

During the past year in Missouri, two members of the School Patrols have been cited for exceptional service.

William B. Collette, from Our Lady of Presentation School in Lee's Summit, was presented the Distinguished Service Award for saving a six-year-old boy from being struck by an automobile last spring.

He saw the boy run into the street and yelled to him while waving his arms to stop a motorist. The alert driver was able to stop just short of striking the youth.

James Stitt, from Oak Hill School in St. Louis, also received the AAA Distinguished Service Award for saving the life of a schoolmate January 14. He pulled a younger boy from the path of a car that had failed to stop at an intersection.

Safety Patrol members are selected from upper grade levels. Selection is based solely on the judgement of the school principal and teacher-sponsor, according to the child's qualities of leadership and reliability.

Written approval of the child's parents or guardians is also required.

The size of the Patrols is determined by street and highway conditions surrounding the school. The number of intersections, volume of vehicle traffic, school enrollment, and number of school dismissal times all influence the number of members required for an effective unit. Ordinarily, local police departments help to determine the extent of coverage provided by Patrols.

Every Patrol is encouraged to have "officers" — older children who assist with administrative tasks and the training of new members. Most Patrols designate a "captain," lieutenants and sergeants.

To permit more qualified youngsters to serve in top posts, many schools establish length-of-service periods and rotate their officers.

Patrol members are recognizable by standard identification items. In nearly all areas of the country they wear the white or fluorescent orange belts which cross the chest and back over the right shoulder and circle the waist. Most members also wear silver Patrol badges.

The Patrol member at his duty station stands about one step back from the curb — never in the street — and indicates to children behind him that they must wait for a clear traffic opening, by spreading both his arms outward and slightly down in a protective gesture.

When a good gap in traffic occurs, he steps aside and motions for the children to cross, preferably in a group.

Only when the Patrol member's view of traffic is obstructed may he step into the street. The Safety Patrol manual specifies that he may go no further than the outer edge of the obstruction — often a parked vehicle — or about a maximum of three paces. He cautions children to remain on the sidewalk of the curb, until motioned to cross.

When traffic is controlled by a police officer, adult crossing guard or a mechanical traffic signal, the Patrol member directs children to cross in conformity with the directions of the adults, or the time-cycle of the traffic signal, the Patrol member directs children to cross in conformity with the directions of the adults, or the time-cycle of the traffic signal.

Generally, Patrol service is provided whenever children are crossing streets on the way to or from school. The Patrol member is at his station 10 to 15 minutes before the opening and closing of classes. This means Patrol members must be good students, since they will be excused from the final minutes of some classroom sessions.

The Patrol manual is a cooperative venture, based on the combined resources and expertise of a group of national organizations interested in the mission of the Patrols. In addition to the AAA, these include the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Education Association, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the National Safety Council and the U.S. Office of Education.

have a measurable indirect impact either on town activities or tax revenue.

"Two major factors appear to determine a new firm's net fiscal impact on local government — how many new residents it attracts, particularly school children, and what share, if any, of local taxes the new firm pays," the report said.

New Industry No Cure-all for Small Towns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent studies have helped raise doubts about the benefits of industrial development in small, rural towns, says an Agriculture Department report.

For many years, the report said, the standard prescription for improving the economic health of a depressed community was "a strong dose of industry" aimed at creating new jobs and larger payrolls.

But problems often arise which offset some of the gains, the report said. Among the reasons cited were:

—Some new firms were either granted property tax concessions or the plants themselves were owned by the town and therefore tax exempt.

—Many employees lived in rural areas and paid very little additional property taxes in the towns, even though introduction of the new plants tended to raise their incomes.

—In most towns the small influx of new employees and their families raised school costs without greatly raising tax revenue.

—Secondary economic effects — such as increased business, apparently did not have a measurable indirect impact either on town activities or tax revenue.

"Two major factors appear to determine a new firm's net fiscal impact on local government — how many new residents it attracts, particularly school children, and what share, if any, of local taxes the new firm pays," the report said.

If You Were the Judge

No Child Support For Test Tube Baby

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

The only thing Abigail would admit not remembering was the reason she married her husband George. She couldn't recognize ability and, she claimed, it was just as well since George had none.

In particular, she constantly harassed him because he had no ability to produce a child for her. In fact, she harassed him to the extent that he finally agreed to permit her to have a child by artificial insemination.

Several years later, Abigail's test tube baby was thriving in great fashion but her marriage was faltering under acute battleitis.

Finally, George threw in the sponge, packed his suitcase and left home. And, when he failed to send money for the baby, Abigail had him under a statute that made it a crime for a father not to support his child.

"That's not my kid," was George's answer, "That kid came out of a test tube."

"Maybe it did," was Abigail's answer, "but it was with George's consent. Since he approved of it then, he can't disapprove of it now."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict George of not supporting "his" child?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that criminal statutes are strictly construed; that in the absence of proof that of failing to support "his" child. In so ruling, however, the judge noted that in civil action for the child's support, George might find the decision less satisfactory.
